Daughters — by Maya Levy

Fridays & Saturdays,

March 23, 24, 30, 31 – 8:00 p.m.

Sundays, March 25 & April 1 – 2:00 p.m.

JUST AS WOMEN ON FIRE was a series of monologues about strong women in today's world, Daughters is a series of personal stories of the experiences of teenage girls. These are brutally honest, angst-ridden, perhaps shocking portrayals of what some of our daughters actually go through before they become women—on the verge of coming into their own, but still fighting their peers, their sexuality, their parents, and themselves. Some of the monologues are funny, some are serious, but all are brimming with compassion and rich language. Wrenching and thought-provoking, the play addresses the expectations, fears, and thoughts that parents may have of their own daughters in a no-holds-barred, up-front, and poignant manner.

IS THIS YOUR LAST NEWSLETTER?

If your mailing label says *DUE, this will likely be the last Indiana Players newsletter you receive unless your membership is renewed. Unfortunately, owning and maintaining the Playhouse means continual expenses, and we can no longer afford to mail the newsletter to non-members. But remember, becoming an IPI member goes far beyond just receiving a monthly newsletter. It allows you to have input into where our community theater is going and what we are doing. Community theater gives people the chance to work as a team toward a single goal, whether on stage or behind the scenes. Supporting the Indiana Players helps support your community. The existence of a successful community theater in Indiana County has boosted the local economy by attracting literally thousands of people to our town and businesses. Please send in your dues, and encourage others to join!

The show stars Beth Blumer, Amy McKenzie, Amanda Malooley, Erica Kisiday, Thea Petrigac, Jenn DeAngelis, Rebecca Chamberlin, Sara McKenzie, and Emily Dowdell.

This play contains language and subject matter of a mature nature. Children under the age of twelve will not be admitted. Children from the age of thirteen to eighteen must be accompanied by an adult. Director R.L. Stoerkel recommends that parents bring their age-appropriate children with them and hopes that this play will inspire thoughtful discussions about the world of their own child.
