The Spotlight

Philadelphia Street Playhouse
725 Philadelphia Street
Indiana, PA 15701

August 2008

You've only got one more weekend to see:

The Mystery of Irma Vep

Don't miss out on the fun! Charles Ludlam's The Mystery of Irma Vep is the definitive spoof of Gothic melodramas. This farce is a quick change marathon in which two actors play almost a dozen different roles. A sympathetic werewolf, an ancient vampire and an Egyptian princess brought to life make this a comedy that has everything. Starring Ray Cupples and Peter Miltz. Directed by Anna Ellermeier and Brett Johns. Be advised, this play contains some adult language and themes.

The remaining show dates are August 15 & 16 at 8pm, and August 17 at 2pm.

Tickets: $10.00 — Students/Seniors: $8.00

For reservations call (724) 464-0725.

This Just In!

No longer will you feel the scorching heat of the heavy spotlight while enjoying a play. The days of wiping the sweat away from your brow during the act breaks are over. The Philadelphia Street Playhouse has finally gotten Air Conditioning! Come cool off and enjoy a show.

The AC was made possible by the myriad of volunteers who generously gave their time to help out at the playhouse. Some of them have become our...
